This classmate's journal contains a lot of work, both in terms of formatting and content. The article is well-organized, and it is evident from the writing that they have a passion for literary creation. They have also completed all the tasks as required (in my opinion, they have even exceeded the required standards!).

I believe the highlight of this classmate's work is how easy it is to read. Firstly, they have labelled their key summaries, and secondly, the use of graphics and text in their formatting helps readers focus on the key points. Despite the extensive reading, they have not forgotten to reflect and raise questions, thus perfectly meeting our class's requirements for developing critical thinking.
